

Money is not a problem.

1. The facilitator.

It has been said from time to time that money is the source of all wicked activities.

There has been a saying going on from time to time stating that money is the root of all evil. I've been hearing all about it for some time in my life dating back to those days when I was at school; In fact; for every evil act committed money would be blamed; ranging from people accused of stealing; robbing and in some case the commitment of murder; and in all such incidents the final inference would be arrived at;" Money". But as I was slowly growing up; with those childhood mentalities beginning to slowly come out of me; I started wondering how on earth every evil act can just be blamed on money. As youngsters alongside my friends both at school and home we used to experiment with a lot of amazing issues like scholars being poisoned with traditional poisons by their friends for jealousy; and people being mutilated for body parts by agents of witchcraft.

Then I started wondering if all such deeds were really influenced by money or something else; but I still could not get to the bottom of this problem nor find the right answer to my questions. Not to say that there was no one to provide for such answers ;no; people were there in the form of adults ; but then; no one was willing to tell the truth ." Money" ;they said. Here I am now having eventually become an adult myself and being personally independent with relations to how I see life and deal with obvious challenges posed by this same good life; and I can tell; money is not the root of all these problems as to which we as human beings come into contact with on almost daily occasions; no; rather people themselves. Or which money then went around killing people; or stole some people's property; or which money went around telling people to hate one another and disrespect others? Is it able to see that money then; or is it capable of talking or walking around planning what to do next or is it able to think and hear just like any other living and independent creature; is it working hard for itself or someone is doing that for it? and above all; did it create itself?

And if it cannot see or hear; nor talk and walk and could not even do anything on its own; nor have created itself; how come then that every wicked act is blamed on it as if it was a living creature with the capacity to do all those things?

Then there surely must be something wrong here man; something is wrong!!

It is said that money is a problem.
